Well... It's a bit early for public comment - which is what this would be - but if no one else complains about nrdc getting preferential treatment, I am always curious about their opinion. We don't have anything to share yet from our end. It's way too early for that. At best we could share a draft project plan when that's ready.

Hi Daniela –

I understand that you have the lead for the CA utilities team on CEC rulemaking for tub spout diverters. We also have an interest in supporting revised Title 20 standards for these products, as they offer a cost effective opportunity to save both energy and water. Any chance we can compare notes with you and/or your technical consultant? I'm around today and tomorrow, but after that I'll be out of the country for the rest of June.
